

WEL COME

LOOKING THE BEST HINDU FUNERAL IN SOUTH LONDON

Selecting for a funeral, burial, and cremation is a personal opinion of a family as there are several factors included such as the deceased's wishes, religion, or family tradition. Hinduism is the third largest religion all over the world and basically originated in India, but there are many denominations globally today with slightly different customs and beliefs of each. Here are some important tips on the procedure that happens at Hindu Funeral in South London.

On a belief of reincarnation Hindu funeral services are supported based on the specific rules and procedures which refers that, if someone dies the soul reincarnates into a different life form or a physical body. People in the Hindu religion believe in karma that the next incarnation of the soul depends on the actions of the individual in their earlier life. A person must attain moksha, to leave the repetitive cycle of birth and death. Keep in mind that there are many denominations of Hinduism, each having different customs and beliefs.

WHAT ARE PROCEDURES ARE FOLLOWED IN A HINDU FUNERAL?

The rites and rituals may vary depending on the religion, tradition of family, and location of the dead person's family. Generally, cremation is normal in every Hindu funeral, but when a person dies, the body remains at home before they are taken to the Hindu Funeral in South London. As cremation is an important part of the Hindu funeral rituals and it takes place within 24 hours of death traditionally. Many Hindu Funerals in South London offer the best services as per your needs and can able to accommodate the traditions and rituals of a Hindu cremation in the right procedure. When mourners recite prayers, first the casket is carried into the crematorium feet. Bereaved will circle their loved ones in prayer and observe the cremation just next to that.

Once the process of cremation is completed, the ashes are scattered in the holy river Ganga. The Hindu families who are living outside India may choose to repatriate the ashes of their loved ones and spread them over the Ganges when going to India. Otherwise, many Indians are choosing to scatter ashes at some water body situated near to them.

Finally, after a Hindu funeral the bereaved mourn for 13 days it is usual for families to have a picture of their loved one displayed and adorned with a garland of flowers in the house during this time.

CONTACT US

Asian Funeral Services
35 Kenton Park Parade,
Kenton Road, Harrow, HA3 8DN, United Kingdom
Opposite Blue Ginger Bar and Restaurant.
Ph no- 02089093737, 07737051232
Email: anil@asianfuneral.services
Web: <https://asianfuneral.services>