Buying the best smelling dog shampoo and conditioner online-

Undoubtedly, there is a wide range of hair care shampoos and conditioners available on the market. Some online shops will give you a cheap deal, but you need to choose a reliable and reputed brand - one that ensures 100% client satisfaction is a good place to start.

Make sure the shampoo and conditioner for dogs you buy is specially formulated to clean your dog skin and fur without irritation. This means that a neutral pH of 7 is required. Using the wrong shampoo or conditioner, or inadequately formulated products may cause a very unhappy, itchy pooch and possibly big vet bills down the track.

Make sure the shampoo is paraben-free, soap-free, pH balanced and ultra-moisturizing. Naturally soothing and nourishing quality products will not only give you the best results but make your dog the most comfortable. They will ensure a precise and gently clean while maintaining your dog's natural oil equilibrium (pH balance). Shampoos that are professional salon formulas are the most appropriate for dry, sensitive, itchy and allergy-prone skin. Also, they are completely safe on eyes and ultra-moisturising on human hands. They should ensure your dog's delicate skin does not become irritated.

When it comes to conditioner, they should promise protective barriers that retain moisture, conditioning and revitalizing fur. Finding a leave-in conditioning treatment for those with dry, sensitive, itchy or allergy-prone skin types is also a bonus. Soap-free shampoo formula will enable easy rinsing, and a leave-in conditioner gets your puppy in and out of the bath quick smart. And that's good for everyone.

Most importantly, lesser quality products may make your dog smell lovely but in some instances, they may be too strong. Remember that dog's noses possess up to 300 million olfactory receptors, compared to about six million in humans, so the stronger fragrances may not be the best idea for your dog.

Also remember that like human shampoos, Dog shampoos and conditioners do expire in time after opening, which can cause some ingredients to degrade over time. Underwater Dogs shampoos and conditioners will last for 12 months after opening, but always keep in a cool dark place and away from humidity.
